New exchange program with Université Paris Diderot (Paris 7) for University of Illinois undergraduates permits study in a wide range of disciplines.

Students enrolled in the Department of French’s Illinois Program in Paris for either one semester or the academic year may now take courses in a wide variety of subjects and disciplines at this major Paris university.

Université Paris Diderot offers courses and research laboratories in a broad range of human and social sciences: English and American Studies; Intercultural Studies and Applied Linguistics; East Asian Languages and Cultures; Linguistics; French Literature, Art and Film Studies; Geography; History and Society Studies; Social Sciences; and Human and Clinical Sciences. It offers courses and research laboratories in all fields of the experimental sciences: Faculty of Life Sciences; Chemistry; IT; Mathematics; Physics; Geosciences, the Environment and the Planets; Institut Universitaire de Technologie. The University, with its 7 hospitals, also offers a comprehensive curriculum and clinical training in medicine, odontology, and hematology. http://www.univ-paris-diderot.fr

Students who have completed 2 years of university study and established the requisite proficiency in French may enroll for as few as 1 and as many as 8 courses at Paris Diderot for a fee of 400 Euros. Credits will be transferred toward their University of Illinois degree in accordance with the policies of the University of Illinois.

Located in the heart of Paris in the new Rive Gauche area, the university offers a rich program of cultural activities and access to excellent library and laboratory facilities. Leading French architects have designed the renovation of the campus, which is integrated into the surrounding neighborhood of shops, gardens, restaurants, residential and office buildings.

For information about the University of Illinois-Université Paris Diderot exchange program, contact Professor Alain Fresco, Department of French afresco@illinois.edu